2026 ECOSOC Partnership Forum Side Event Strategic Investments for Resilient Agrifood Systems: Driving SDG Progress through Partnerships

Concept Note

Monday 26 January 2026 | 9:30-11:00 EST
Hybrid: Zoom and in-person at Columbia University, New York

Lead organizers:

- Columbia Center on Sustainable Investment (CCSI)

Other organizing partners:

- Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO)
- Global Donor Platform for Rural Development (GDPRD)
- International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD)

Abstract:

Building resilience in agriculture is non-negotiable: 2024 was the hottest year on record, with extreme heat threatening 1.2 billion livelihoods, while outdated systems impose $12 trillion in hidden costs to society annually. Transformation at scale requires cross-sectoral action, encompassing secure water resources, affordable energy and rural infrastructure, grounded in a participatory approach. This would offer a tenfold socio-economic and environmental return, unlocking $4.5 trillion in business opportunities per year. However, current investment models are highly fragmented, not grounded in the mandates and capabilities of each sector.

Through a multi-sectoral lens, we will explore how strategic agrifood investments can accelerate progress on the Sustainable Development Goals 6, 7, 9, 11 and 17, as well as showcase how multi-partner platforms can sequence and align financing to better leverage increasingly scarce resources. The event will demystify the roles of each sector - public, private, and multilateral actors - in financing agrifood systems through a coordinated and field-tested process. A follow-up partnership guide will be developed, synthesizing recommendations for integrated SDG action.

Objectives:

1. Explore multistakeholder partnerships for integrating climate resilience, water/energy security, and inclusive infrastructure considerations into agrifood investment strategies
2. Examine the complementary roles of public, private, and multilateral partners in financing resilient agrifood systems, ensuring alignment with sector-specific capabilities
3. Lay the groundwork for a partnership guide to unpack coordinated investment mechanisms, enabling integrated and participatory SDG action

Additional Resources:

The event discussions will be informed by knowledge products from organizing partners, including:
